Hancock Court hastens completion

With only two days remaining in the two week July term of Hancock County Circuit Court, assistant district attorney John Johnson sought Wednesday to wrap up some of the state's remaining cases presently on the docket.

Two defendants charged in the July 1973 armed robbery of the Travelrest Motel on Hwy 90 in Bay St. Louis were brought before Hancock County Circuit Court Judge Floyd Logan Wednesday afternoon.

In the state's case against Barbara Holland, assistant district attorney John C. Johnson recommended to the court that the charge of armed robbery be reduced to accessory after the fact and the defendant be tried in Juvenile Court. Logan sustained both motions.

In the state's case against James Odom, defense attorney John Chevis Jr. asked the court for a continuance saying that he had not had sufficient time to prepare a defense for his client. Odom is presently contained in Hancock County Jail. Logan sustained the motion and set the new trial for Oct. 18.

The court set Oct. 17 as the trial date for Bruce S. Steward indicted last week with Sam Sanders for the robbery of the Cross Roads Grocery on Dec. 15, 1973 after Steward entered a plea of not guilty.

Three persons entered guilty pleas before Judge Logan in Tuesday's court. Leo Bennet, who pled guilty to burglary of a dwelling, was placed on two years probation.

Rebecca Campbell was placed on three years probation after pleading guilty to possession of a controlled substance (marijuana) and drug paraphernalia.

The court sentenced John Emilio Spencer to serve one year in the county jail on each of two counts of uttering forgery to run concurrently.

In other cases the court ordered H. G. Lumpkin to withstand psychiatric examination at the State Mental Hospital in Whitfield to determine his ability to stand trial on charges of rape and assault and battery with intent to maim.

At the state's request the court dismissed charges against Pierre Calonge and Anita Copeland charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

The court continued the case of Wilbur Joseph Haas charged with two counts of receiving stolen property until Oct. 17.

On Friday a petit jury found in favor of the defendant in a $180,000 damage suit brought by Dolores Pouncey against Irvin E. Green Jr. for personal injuries suffered by her daughter as the result of Green's motorcycle striking the child June 23, 1973 while on an outing at Buccaneer State Park in Waveland, Miss.

Green was represented by Lucien Gex, while Mrs. Pouncey was represented by Thomas Long, Gulfport.

Arguments were still continuing Wednesday afternoon in Williams vs. Wiggins, a case remanded from the Supreme Court.

The retrial is over damages that were not awarded following a verdict for the plaintiff, Charles Williams, in the first trial.

Williams is seeking compensatory and punitive damages from Jerry Wiggins, defendant, for injuries suffered in an automobile accident involving the defendant.

Williams is represented by attorney Boyce Holleman, Gulfport, while Wiggins is represented by the firm of Bryan, Nelson, Allen & Schroder.

Contractors pledge work renewal

An apparent agreement was reached Monday between Hancock County Supervisors and agents for two Gulfport construction firms involved in recent disputes over revenue-sharing contracts for road work performed in the county.

Work on resealing Rocky Hill, Shoreline Park, Highway 603 Standard and Necaise roads by Tri-State Materials will begin "immediately," according to company president Jack Pyle who told supervisors "we never have stopped working on the roads."

Pyle accompanied by his attorney Norman Breland met with supervisors and Rae Bryant, attorney for Firemen's Fund Insurance Company to Firemen's Fund Insurance Company to reach an agreement on the roads in question after assistant county engineer Donn Murray said that the county was continually repairing and patching the roads which were laid in November and December.

Under the agreement reached Monday Pyle will re-prime two roads in question and give them a new covering. Board attorney Sam Favre said that no further action would be required by the board just the completion of the contract. "Then the board will pay Mr. Pyle," he said.

In a separate matter supervisors decided to delete one road from the contract package of Breland Trucking and Construction Co. let last July and totalling some $105,000.

Supervisors had earlier declared Breland in default on the contract which originally included some 14 roads throughout the county, and summoned representatives of the bonding company, also Fireman's Fund, to work out a solution.

A letter was produced at Monday's meeting from Mrs. Rose Breland, secretary-treasurer of the company proposing that the company complete work on six roads previously abandoned by the company for the remaining amount of monies due and now held by the county.

Chancery Court Clerk John Rutherford said that the amount of money being held by the county is approximately $52,722.72 not including another $6,000 retainer.

Roads in question on the Breland contract are Lee Town road, Chapman road, Washington road, Central Avenue, Firetower road and Silver Creek Acres road.

In an addendum to a letter of agreement between Breland and the supervisors, the board Monday excluded Firetower road from the contract.

tract with no responsibility for road falling on either the contractor or the bonding company.

Work on the Breland contract is to commence on or before Aug. 5 with payments made as the work progresses.

The board agreed to make all payments directly to Bryant under the Breland Contract.

Bryant said that he did not think that his company, Firemen's Fund, would have to pay any difference on the Breland contract but expected there would be substantial differences in the Tri-State contract.

Woman charged with murder of husband

A local woman is held in Hancock county jail without bond on charges of murder following the stabbing death of her husband late Tuesday night.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Mrs. Edith Rada, 57, Jourdan River Estates, at her home after James J. Rada, 60, died of a deep wound of the upper arm which severed an artery.

The body was taken to Riemann Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis. Investigating officers were Robert Tartavouille, Mack Coward, Chief Deputy Lathon Garriga, and Constables Terry Tartavouille and Sam Perniciaro.

Bay St. Louis girl is missing

Another 15-year-old Bay St. Louis girl is missing and the family is asking the public for assistance in turning up any information as to her whereabouts.

Willie Jean Berry has been missing from her home since June 13, when she was last seen in the company of another Bay teenage girl. Willie Jean is described as five feet four inches tall, 140 pounds and has blue eyes and long blonde hair. She is a freshman at Bay Junior High School.

Anyone having any information concerning her whereabouts should contact either the Sheriff's Office at 457-5101, or the Bay St. Louis Police at 457-5101.

Stop signs changed

Four-way stop signs at the intersections of Main Street at Necaise and Main at St. Francis Street were removed Friday. This decision was made by the City Council at its last meeting. The four-way signs were removed from the intersections of Main Street at Necaise and Main at St. Francis Street.

Bay school budget remains unresolved

After almost three hours of discussion Tuesday night in Waveland city hall, Bay and Waveland city officials still have not resolved the problem of financing the municipal separate school district's 1974-75 budget, some six percent higher than last year.

An earlier suggestion by school board attorney Sam Favre, entertained favorably by Bay commissioners, to add another four mills to the district's tax base brought a resolution of objection to the measure by the Waveland council.

The school district now gets a maximum 25 mills, plus six and a half mills for a bond sinking fund, which was deemed insufficient to handle the requested $1,374,183 budget approved by school trustees last week.

Wiggins suggested the four mill addition be forgotten that state law requires a public referendum for the addition of a millage rate for the two cities, Bay and Waveland.

Wiggins said that the four mill addition would not increase, nor a tax increase, for the two cities, Bay and Waveland.

News in brief

COAST CONFERENCE

Governor William Waller was on the Gulf Coast yesterday and today hosting a Conference on Coastal Zone Management, held at the Sheraton-Biloxi.

The conference, sponsored by the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium for the Mississippi Marine Resources Council, is designed to acquaint governmental representatives with the Mississippi Coastal Zone Management Development Program and to solicit their cooperation and advice on procedures for addressing the principle issues of Coastal Zone Management.

According to J. Baron McIlwain, Sea Grant Coordinator of Coastal Zone Management Activities, speakers who include Governor Waller and Texas State Senator Aaron R. Schwartz, will define important issues facing the Mississippi Coastal Zone.

SEEKS FUEL CEILING

Southern District Public Service Commissioner John L. Dale is in Washington this week conferring with members of the Mississippi Congressional delegation regarding what Dale termed as "outrageous and excessive" costs of fuel oil and natural gas being charged by oil suppliers and passed on by the State's electric utilities to customers in Mississippi.

Dale, together with members of his staff, will advise members of congress on the disastrous impact of uncontrolled fuel costs on the electric customers of the state due to recent increases in wholesale costs of oil and natural gas used to generate electricity in Mississippi. Dale stated that "the State Public Service Commission is deeply concerned that something be done at the Federal level if at all possible to place a ceiling price on interstate oil and natural gas being used for the generation of electricity."

NASA NODS TO LOCKHEED

Lockheed Electronics Co., Inc., has been selected by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for negotiations leading to a contract for maintenance and operation of the White Sands Test Facility located near Las Cruces, New Mexico.

"The new contract," stated K. E. Cooney, general manager of the company's Engineering Services Division, here, which will perform the work, "covers a 5-year period with the first year cost-plus-award-fee contract valued at about $4 million. Terms also include a firm price option for the second year and three additional extensions of one year each."

ACCIDENT REPORTS A MUST

Officials of the Mississippi Boat and Water Safety Commission have advised all boaters that Mississippi law requires an accident report to be filed with the Commission "if an accident causes death to any person, if a person is incapacitated for a period of 24 hours or more, or if property damage is in excess of $100."

A Commission spokesman said, "The purpose of any boating accident report is to determine the cause of the accident and to prevent future accidents. For any other reportable accident, the report should be filed with the Commission within five days."

The Commission said that failure to file a report may result in legal prosecution.

The Story of Parchman Prison farm or political prey?

This is the conclusion of an in-depth series on the controversial Mississippi state penitentiary at Parchman - a documentary of its past, present and future.

by Adoree Shortle
Echo News Editor

LAW AND THE MAN

The present administration at Parchman has one decided advantage over all previous ones. Combined efforts of the federal courts and the state legislature - prompted by last year's hue and cry over deplorable conditions - have made possible funds and legislation to effect what amounts to a complete overhaul of the institution.

Anyone reading this series on Parchman may well have gotten the impression that all the past administrators were bad. That is not entirely true. From a strictly objective viewpoint, one must realize that some of the former superintendents had good intentions and some, as in the case of the last one, were victims of circumstance.

Too often, men appointed as superintendents were not qualified for the momentous and intricate job of running a vast, complex prison farm. Therefore, the responsibility, and the blame, for abortive efforts lies more with those who did the appointing.

Most had law enforcement backgrounds, but few, if any, had the necessary training the improvements and changes for the better which are daily being instigated.

And the record is impressive. A brief description of the more than a dozen major programs instigated at the penitentiary shows upgrading in just about every department and sector of the prison.

Considerable sums of money will be expended in the coming months for a massive re-building program, made possible by a $4 million allocation by the state building commission, supplemented by an expected $2 million grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Division.

The commission has approved the letting of bids for some $2 million of construction work now underway at the prison.

All the roads on the prison grounds were in deplorable condition by the end of last year, according to prison superintendent Jack Reed, so road repair was a top priority item.

Approximately $85,000 has already been spent on blacktopping the seven mile main road that bisects the prison grounds as well as much of the remaining 40 miles of roadways on the grounds.

Of equal importance was the need for additional and better men's housing units to relieve grossly overcrowded conditions. Site preparation and security personnel.

A $45,000 security training facility is planned adjacent to the firing range, funding coming directly from the state legislature. The building will contain classrooms, visual aids, films and lecture rooms for security personnel training and can be utilized by area police and sheriff's departments as well.

FIRE STATION

At another location, Reed pointed with pride to a fire station under construction, the first ever built at Parchman. The fire department will consist of six full time firemen and three trucks - the present truck, a new American LaFrance pumper and an ambulance.

Judicious use of old bricks salvaged from demolished buildings and inmate labor held the actual cost of the fire station to $25,000. The completed facility, Reed pointed out, will be equivalent to an $85,000 station.

SANITATION

For the nominal cost of used dump trucks and dempsy dumpsters, a greatly improved garbage collection system has been initiated. Actually, there was no system at all in previous years. Garbage was collected from points around the prison in a mule drawn wagon and dumped on the ground in one or two spots. The pollution quotient just about matched the stench level by 1973, addition. The hope is now that the new administration can prevail with a continuing program of reform - leading to the establishment of a model corrections system for the state of Mississippi.

State Senator James Molpus, for several years the primary moving force behind the penitentiary's revolutionary reform and ultimate renaissance, expressed an idealistic but not impossible hope that someday Parchman, as a prison, will be obsolete.

In its place, he envisions an institution where the convicted offender will be regarded, rather than as a criminal, as a maladjusted individual whose behavior is unacceptable to society.

Molpus anticipates the day when all such institutions will serve only to isolate such individuals from society until they can, through professional treatment, readjust to a more acceptable pattern of behavior.

Molpus, who came in for his own share of personal attack, as did Reed, from unprincipled opponents, persevered in his determination to clean up the penitentiary at any cost, and has remained along with a small nucleus of other legislators to bring about the renaissance so long needed at Parchman.

chman of top executives with 11 major Mississippi industries, under the auspices of the National Alliance of Businessmen, opened doors in the business and industrial world for more than 150 inmates, now out on work release.

One of the state's largest industrial complexes has hired about 100 inmates alone, giving work incentive benefits to each ex-prisoner on his or her arrival.

The company pays for two weeks residence in a nearby motel until the worker gets his first pay check, gives him a $50 bonus after four days on the job and offers quick pay raise incentives.

COLLEGE TRAINEES

Through the cooperation of nearby colleges, 40 students worked at Parchman this summer in custodial positions, the project aimed at interesting college graduates in entering correctional careers. Another 20 students, male and female, joined the staff as counselor-correctional personnel in the inmate housing units.

FUTURE HOPE

The hope is now that the new administration can prevail with a continuing program of reform - leading to the establishment of a model corrections system for the state of Mississippi.

State Senator James Molpus, for several years the primary moving force behind the penitentiary's revolutionary reform and ultimate renaissance, expressed an idealistic but not impossible hope that someday Parchman, as a prison, will be obsolete.

PARCHMAN INMATES from camp five harvest vegetables from the camp garden which they voluntarily work under the new system. The 140 acre prison field, used only for feeding inmates, gave a yield this spring of 1,100 crates of vegetables of which 2,400 gallons were canned for later use.

Curry trial set Oct. 15

Fourteen defendants were arraigned before Circuit Court Judge Floyd Logan Friday morning in Hancock County Circuit Court in Bay St. Louis.

Trial for Bernard (Wildman) Curry indicted in Oct. 1973 for the Aug. 31 murder of Thomas Forrest Summers, 66, a Pearl River grocer, and arrested in New Orleans in February was set for Oct. 15.

A motion by defense attorney Joseph Benvenuti for a special venire was sustained by Judge Logan. Benvenuti indicated he would also file a motion for psychiatric examination prior to the end of the July court term.

Curry has been confined without bond at Harrison County Jail in Gulfport since being arrested in New Orleans and transferred to Mississippi.

Also arraigned Friday were Lawrence and Cindy Hill charged with possession of a controlled substance (1566.7 grams of marijuana) with intent to sell or deliver and possession of drug paraphernalia. Trial for both was set for Oct. 24 after not guilty pleas were entered.

Motion for severance by attorneys for Sam Sanders charged with Bruce Stewart for the robbery of the Crossroads Grocery was sustained. Trial for Sanders was set for Oct. 21.

Trial for Charles J. Luc was set for Oct. 24 after Luc pled not guilty to charges of assault and battery with intent to kill. Defense attorney is Gerald Gex.

A motion for severance by attorneys for Albert V. Guillot charged with Donald H. Vincent with possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of a controlled substance (120 grams of marijuana) was sustained. Trial for Vincent was set for Oct. 17 with trial for Vincent set for Oct. 16 on both counts. Richard Yarborough is representing Guillot.

The court was informed that defendants James Granger and Larry C. Saltzman charged with the December 1972 slaying of Billy Tracy Johnson in Pearl River were currently incarcerated.

Granger is contained in Louisiana State Penitentiary in Angola, La. while Saltzman is in St. Tammany Parish Jail.

Both are to be arraigned Oct. 14 with trial set for Oct. 21.

In the state vs. Felix Albert Jr., Gerald Patrick Mauffray, and Lisa Ann Winters, the court granted a severance motion on behalf of Miss Winters and set trial for Oct. 18. Trial for Mauffray was set for Oct. 22 and trial for Albert was set for Oct. 15. The three are charged with possession of a controlled substance (51.9 grams of marijuana) and possession of paraphernalia.

The court set trial for Oct. 14 for James and Jackie Hazelwood charged with assault and battery with intent to kill against the person of Gary Veglia. Joseph Benvenuti is defense attorney.

Also arraigned Friday were Christopher Linn Sutterfield and Dwight Hendricks for burglary and larceny of Hancock Industries Feb. 22. Trial was set for Oct. 17 for Hendricks and Oct. 24 for Sutterfield.

Defense attorney Robert Genin represented Hendricks at arraignment proceedings and was granted a motion for severance.

GED tests slated

The General Educational Development (GED) test will be administered from 6 to 10 p.m. on July 26 and during the day on July 27.

Anyone interested in taking this high school equivalency test should call the testing center at 467-3568, or apply at the campus at Stennis International Airfield.

A few openings remain for students who are interested in enrolling in the college level nine month General Clerical course which will be offered by the Pearl River Junior College Hancock County.

Vocational-Technical Center starting in August of 1974. Successful completion of this course will qualify individuals to enter file clerk, clerk-typist, or secretarial employment. Students should register now in order to meet all entrance requirements prior to the starting of the course on August 26. Anyone interested in this course should call the Vo-Tech Center at 467-3568.

and expertise in correctional systems on a large scale. There is a vast difference between running a municipal or county police department and supervising a state penitentiary. On the other hand, a man experienced only in farming is in no way equipped to handle a penal system.

Jack Reed's predecessor, who had been highly regarded as a county sheriff, was reputedly coerced into taking the position as superintendent on an interim basis until a permanent superintendent could be found.

He walked into a morass of mismanagement and extortion and was met with an indifferent legislature. Nine months later, he was still trying to cope with an institution which was daily falling apart.

Others before him, we are told, had unrealistic hopes and plans for improvement which are today coming to fruition. In the final analysis, perhaps it's all a matter of timing.

RENAISSANCE

One of the newest members of the staff said, regarding this series, "Let the record speak for itself. In six months, Parchman has been reborn and only good can come from the system now."

He implored an attitude of positive reporting, to point out ground work has been completed for erection of three 60 feet by 160 foot metal buildings which will house 100 men each. The units are considered temporary housing until an entirely new prison can be built, hopefully within the next five years.

SECURITY BLDG. Another $75,000 has been spent converting the old plasma center, where prisoners could sell a pint of blood for $4, and often did without proper medical supervision. Reed put a stop to the system and the building has been converted into a large security center, which will be the nerve center of the prison.

A totally new communications system is being installed there and all fire arms storage (behind barred doors), security guards and training classes are contained in the center. Auxiliary generators have been installed in case of power failure and the daily operation of the prison emanates from this building.

What Reed described as "the best pistol range in northern Mississippi" is nearing completion at a central point near security. Concrete practice firing pads and a dirt back wall will serve for constant firearms training, mandatory for all ding to the unsavory situation at the prison. Trucks make regularly scheduled collections now from dempsy dumpsters and haul to a sanitary land fill at a remote section of the prison.

WORK RELEASE AND REHAB One of the most significant programs in the area of inmate rehabilitation is the vocational-technical school at the prison, which is expanding its curriculum to include clerical and business courses for women, communications related courses for both men and women as well as a newly opened welding class for women, by request of female inmates.

Completion of vocational and or academic courses at the school brings an inmate nearer to eligibility for the work release program, also new.

Development Comm. pleased with Du Pont plant decision

Tommy Munroe, president, Harrison County Development Commission, stated that the commission is extremely pleased by the DuPont announcement of July 16, to build their new manufacturing plant in the De Lisle area in Harrison County.

Munroe attributed the action to various local and state officials and the Mississippi

School Principal June Coffey said that the Tuesday night turnout was rather "slim but classes for Thursday and the following Tuesday should bring increased enrollment."

The program, the first in a series of Community Interest projects will be offered every other month throughout the year. "I believe the program is a chance for the public to learn more about arts and crafts and depending on the Power Company working together with The Harrison County Development Commission during the last three years.

Munroe said that the county and state are very fortunate to have the world's largest chemical company establish this manufacturing facility in our area.

enrollment and public interest, we will try to offer the program on a continuous basis," explained Mrs. Coffey. Courses, instructors and costs of the 4-week classes offered on Tuesday night are: Beginning Macrame - is taught by Ellen Waff and the course costs $15 which includes all materials needed; Fred Rendfrey will instruct Rugmaking at a cost of $25 with all materials included; One Strike on Greenware is taught by Mary Woleben and the cost is $9 with all the necessary materials; Drawing will feature Pete Potter as the instructor and $24 will cover all costs. Courses meeting Thursday night are: Water Color Painting which will see Pete Potter as the instructor and costs will be $32 including all laboratory materials; Belt Weaving is taught by Ellen Waff and will cost $25 with all materials. Beginning Pottery is instructed by Darlene Powell and cost is $15 plus an estimated $4 for materials; Introductory Stained Glass costs $48 with all materials and is taught by Fred Rendfrey; Mary Woleben will instruct China Painting on Porcelain and cost will be $12 with materials. Clay Sculpture will feature Isabel Keating as the instructor with costs running $35 and all materials included. Meeting on Tuesday and Thursday night is Astrology which will meet a total of eight times. This is the only class in the curriculum that will run both nights. The instructor is Martin Fledderman and cost is $40 included are all materials.

Mrs. Coffey said, "We prefer all interested persons to call in to register. This gives us more time to notify the instructor of the quantity of supplies to bring to class."

At present because of the length of meeting hours and times credit cannot be offered. However, Mrs. Coffey said that in the future we eventually hope to offer it.

In the making is an art show and several other programs along the same community interest path as the new courses.

New for next fall's classes is the special instruction in portrait and underwater photography.

Judy Hall of Ocean Springs will teach the portrait photography while Robert Ewing of Monroe La. whose work has been published in National Geographic will tutor the underwater classes.

Mrs. Coffey explained that one of the objectives of the course program is to try and get the community involved in arts and crafts.

Record crowd fills Long Beach for marathon show

by Bob Innes
Long Beach Bureau
More than 1,500 people converged on the Coast-city of Long Beach Saturday to create what one observer described as "the longest horse show in history in these parts."

The 1,500 participants brought 408 registered quarter horses from all sections of the southeastern United States. The sudden influx into the town of 6,170 population caused near traffic jams on all roads leading to Jerry and Jan Daniels' ranch at the outskirts of town.

The Daniels' annual quarter horse show got underway at 9 a.m. Saturday and by 11:30 that night the concession stand was bare of 2,000 cold drinks, 37 loaves of bread, 400 hamburgers, 250 hot dogs, 3,000 pounds of ice and even fried mullets.

But that didn't stop the show as it continued for another four hours running the show's length to a marathon 18 hours and 30 minutes.

Daniels said an estimated $5 million in horses and equipment were on hand for the 36-event full American Quarter Horse Assn. Show.

"Most association shows don't include cutting and roping but ours did," said Daniels.

At the Daniels' quarter horse ranch Watson Butts and his Long Beach Minor League Astros were in charge of the concessions.

"The purpose was to try to raise enough money to take the team to the Houston Astrodom and World for two nights. Before the horse show we were short a little but we earned enough for the trip," explained Butts.

"The event was a tremendous success. We really had a fantastic show, thanks to all who participated," said Daniels.

Daniels said he hopes the show would continue to grow in all areas next year and that he and his wife would work even harder to make next year's event bigger and better.

Astros' coach Butts said that feeding two meals to 1,500 people was "just plain hard work," but all in all it was well worth it.

Grand Jury Report

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF HANCOCK COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI
JULY TERM 1974

TO THE HONORABLE FLOYD J. LOGAN, CIRCUIT JUDGE PRESIDING:

We, the Grand Jury, having been duly empaneled, sworn and charged at the July 1974 Circuit Court Term, now beg leave to submit this, our final report.

We have been in session for six (6) days, during which time we examined 166 witnesses, considered 28 cases, and returned 25 indictments. In addition to the above, we inspected the following facilities and made the following comments and recommendations:

JAIL INSPECTION

The Jail, although obsolete and very crowded was found to be clean and well maintained. The food selection was excellent, and the facility well managed. Recommended improvements include adding some sanitary facilities in the maximum security cell and either repairing or replacing the stove. Consideration should be given to removing the old gallows which is presently a safety hazard.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE

While in good condition and very clean, additional space is desperately needed. There is no space for interrogation, the sheriff does not have a private office, and working and storage space are at a premium. The Sheriff and staff appear competent and ambitious in their duties.

YOUTH DETENTION CENTER

The Center was found to be clean and in a good state of maintenance. This center presently is jointly occupying the same building as the Sheriff's office, and has the identical space problem. One of these two facilities should be moved into another area to provide additional space for both operations.

COUNTY HOME

The County Home appeared exemplary in all respects. Mr. and Mrs. Fricke deserve recognition for the wonderful atmosphere they have created for our senior citizens.

HOSPITAL

The hospital appeared to be managed in a competent manner. The facility was clean and in good state of maintenance. The emergency areas were well staffed and equipped, and drug access well regulated. Overall operation was smooth and orderly. Suggestions for improvements to the facility were as follows:

1. More storage space is obviously required. If necessary construction should be considered.
2. The maintenance operation should be separated from the main facility, possibly to a small separate building. The necessary equipment and combustibles presently stored within the hospital complex constitute a serious fire hazard.
3. Staffing, particularly at the front switch board seemed short. The Ward Clerk is often not available as needed to temporarily relieve the front switch board operator.
4. The swinging door which existed near the lobby still has the floor plate in place although the door has been apparently permanently removed. If the door is not to be replaced, the floor plate should be removed as it is a safety hazard.
5. The emergency light in the emergency operating area should be checked periodically for electrolyte. When inspected, it was approaching the danger level. Fire extinguishers should also be on a periodic inspection schedule with tags on all such equipment indicating dates of inspection and initials of inspector.

COURTHOUSE BUILDING

Since this building is in a state of being remodeled, no official inspection was made. The county officials are to be complimented on the remodeling effort, especially for the improvements being made in the courtroom area and for the central air-conditioning and heating being installed. Grand Jury deliberations under the existing conditions were very difficult. It is hoped that a quieter, more private area will be available upon completion of the remodeling effort.

GENERAL COUNTY OPERATIONS

Many allegations were brought to the attention of the Grand Jury regarding possible improprieties in the management of county government. In every case, testimony was encouraged and all possible data was gathered and evaluated within the time and resource limits available to the jury. The result of these inquiries were as follows:

NEPOTISM

Six (6) allegations of Nepotism were made and considered by the Grand Jury. Five of these consisted of hiring relatives, and one of purchasing from a relative. Of the five accused of hiring relatives, four were found to be removed beyond the third degree of kinship as defined by Civil Law. The other, while being within the limits prohibited by law, had held his position prior to the election of the relative and was thus exempt from the nepotism statute. The final Nepotism allegation concerned the purchase of culverts for county use from a Brother-in-law of a Supervisor. Testimony and investigation revealed that the material supplied was done so under the procedures of competitive bid, and that the material was being supplied as a result of the lowest bid.

CITY-COUNTY LIBRARY ARCHITECTURAL CONTRACT

The Grand Jury considered testimony regarding the recommendation of an architectural contract by the City-County Library Commission. The proposal of the lowest qualified firm was not accepted and recommendation was made to accept a higher proposal at an additional cost to the County of at least $3,100.00. It is strongly recommended that the Supervisors investigate the situation and re-evaluate this recommendation.

JUSTICES' OF THE PEACE (OPERATING OUT OF ELECTED BEATS.)

At least two (2) of the present Hancock County Justice of the Peace are residing outside of the beats within which they were elected. This condition has existed for a period of up to twenty-four (24) months. In accordance with state statutes as cited by the Attorney General of the State of Mississippi, these post should have been immediately vacated and new elections held to replace these officials once they changed domicile. The Grand Jury urges immediate compliance with the state laws regarding this situation.

ALLEGED GRAND LARCENY OF MATERIAL FROM SCHOOL LANDS (16TH SECTIONS)

An inspection was made of the 16th Section Lands north of Leetown which revealed that substantial amounts of material had been removed and several large fresh excavations were apparent. Questioning of equipment operators and truck drivers employed by the county revealed that the material had been largely removed by county equipment under the jurisdiction of Beat Two (2), some within the last year. All information and testimony received verified that the material removed had been used as fill on county roadways. According to school board officials, no permission or agreement was ever made for removal of this material. No funds have ever been received by the School system for this material.

ILLEGAL USE OF COUNTY EQUIPMENT ON PRIVATE PROPERTY

Extensive testimony and questioning revealed no instance in which county equipment was misused for private benefit to a degree which would substantiate and indictment.

USE OF COUNTY FUEL IN NON-COUNTY VEHICLES

Almost every witness who was questioned by the Grand Jury on County operations was asked if he had any knowledge of these allegations. No proof to substantiate this charge was received from any source.

'Other Half Loves' is asking for trouble

By Adoree Shortle

Any time an amateur theatre group takes on the production of a difficult play which is built around complex staging, the group is asking for trouble.

Olive McKenna evinced more courage than judgement when she agreed to direct "How the Other Half Loves," Bay St. Louis Little Theatre's last offering.

It's a very funny play, written with broad humor and lines that must be delivered quickly, crisply and by actors who are unerring in their characterizations. The Beverly Playhouse in New Orleans attempted a production of the play last winter with some good, professional casting, and it fell flat.

Mrs. McKenna was beset with production problems from the start which should have given her the clue that this play would have been better left unsaid. Re-casting into rehearsals and some undependable cast members made her job harder than it should have been. A veteran of numerous musicals, she must be given credit for doing the best she could with what she had to work with.

Joe Barbo is always a delight on stage and although he fluffed an awful lot of lines, his adroitness at ad libbing helped to salvage his characterization.

Myrt Haas was no match for Mr. Barbo's experienced smoothness in a drawing room comedy. She looked and dressed the part of Frank Foster's typical corporate head wife but although she appeared at ease on stage, her consistently low key portrayal lacked the verve the part demanded.

However, she came into her own beautifully in the second scene as an adept hostess with ill at ease guests in a fractured conversational gambit.

Doug Koger and Mike Cuevas were standouts. Mr. Koger's milieu is sophisticated comedy, but his desperate attempts, as the bumbling underling, to get to the bathroom at the Fosters' was hysterically funny and considerably better done than his Beverly Playhouse counterpart.

Mike Cuevas as the young disorganized wife who needs to be needed was delightfully entertaining. Her dinner party drunk scene and lewd joke bit were great.

If this was Kinta Maloney's on stage debut then she should do it more often. She has good stage presence and good voice projection. Her portrayal of a character which is the antithesis of her own personality showed terrific promise. The only flaw was too much makeup for a plain-as-yesterday's-mashed-potatoes personality. Skip Wusnack was miscast. He tried hard and came through well in some of the lighter moments but one got the feeling that he should stick to music.

Still, all things considered, the production afforded an entertaining evening and well worth a trip to the red barn playhouse.

Waveland artist Joan de Sakhnofsky's paintings on display in the lobby were, as always, charming as well as the handcraft display by the Bay-Waveland Senior Citizens.

We're looking forward to Laurie Kiefer's Children's Theatre productions, coming up next at Little Theatre.

GEORGE BURNS

...I started smoking cigars when I was 14'

YESTERDAY'S STARS TODAY

George Burns is a very funny man

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — "Cocacoma" is a funny word," George Burns said, smoking his eternal cigar. "You can get a laugh with that. But you can't get a laugh with 'Glendale' — though Glendale's actually funnier than Cocacoma."

He was sitting in his office at General Service Studios in Hollywood (yes, he actually works in Hollywood which is something few people in the entertainment business do), explaining how he's stayed in demand as a comic for half a century.

Allen, his late wife Gracie Allen, was always considered the hilarious half of the Burns and Allen comedy team, but Burns is very funny, too, including during interviews.

He was preparing for a recent one-night stand at the Shubert Theater in Los Angeles to be converted into a record album and was discussing his choice of material.

"Certain things are always basically funny," Burns elucidated. "For example, if I tell a joke about Jack Benny, that's always funny, because Benny is a real person and the audience can visualize what I'm talking about.

"I don't allow any of my humor to be younger than I am. That's important. I remember when Gracie was 35 years old, she said to me, 'I can't do that character any more.'"

"And, when I asked, 'Why not?' she said, 'Because I'm too old to be a dizzy dame.'"

"I agreed with her, then said, 'But you're not too old to do a dizzy woman.' So she kept on playing that character for another 30 years."

"If, at that point in her career, she'd done a joke about how I'd tried to kiss her and she'd slapped me, it wouldn't have been right for her."

"But she could say, 'I put a big roast and a little roast in the oven for dinner.'"

"To which I'd say, 'How will you know when they've cooked long enough?'"

"And she'd say, 'When the little roast burns, the big roast will be done.'"

"And that would be funny. The luckiest day of my life was when I met Gracie. She was dainty and lovely and a great actress and a great lady."

"Gracie wasn't a great comedienne, you know. She was a great actress.

"And offstage she let me get all the laughs."

Gracie was a dramatic actress before she went backstage at a theater one night to say, "Hello," to a girl friend and was introduced to Burns.

Their marriage as well as their talent made Hollywood history.

"We had a marvelous marriage, because we didn't work at it," Burns said. "It was a marriage, not part of our act. I can't remember a single time when I kissed Gracie and she applauded."

"We were really together. Most men eat breakfast with their wives and then go to the office for the day and don't see their wives again until they come home at night."

"But Gracie and I ate together, worked together, slept together and were together all the time."

"I wouldn't have had it any other way. I would have been afraid someone would have stolen Gracie."

"I didn't have to do anything until Gracie retired. I was retired all the time I worked with her."

"Now I just work when I want to. I do the things I like to do, such as this night at the Shubert."

"I'll tell a few jokes and sing a few songs; in fact, I may sing several songs while I have the audience. Because where's the audience going to go? The doors will be locked."

"I started smoking cigars," Burns continued, eyeing the tip of the one in his hand, "when I was 14 years old because I always wanted to be an actor and I thought a cigar would make me look like one."

"So I got a cigar and pincez glasses I found on the street and imagined I looked like an actor."

"Now I have to smoke a cigar. I can't time jokes with a cigarette."

"Kids starting out as comics today are lucky because they can get all the material

Grand Jury Report

DEAD HEADING OR FEATHERBEDDING OF COUNTY PAYROLL

Approximately 15 county employees were questioned regarding this allegation. Not a single instance was substantiated by testimony.

DELIVERY OF COUNTY MATERIAL (SHELLS, GRAVEL, FILL, OR CULVERTS) FOR USE ON PRIVATE PROPERTY

Several detailed allegations were investigated, but no evidence was received in testimony to substantiate any illegal practice in this area.

BRIBERY OR KICKBACKS

Several allegations were made concerning county officials or employees receiving bribery or kickback payments. Testimony was received from contractors, inspectors, and county employees. No evidence or testimony was received which justified any of these charges.

In all, a total of over 50 witnesses were subpoenaed to testify on matters relating to county government. Most of these were questioned at length and in detail. With the few exceptions noted above, the Grand Jury wishes to compliment the county officials for their efforts in performance of their duties.

Special commendations are merited by Henry Otis and his staff, particularly Mrs. Ring, Mrs. Garcia and Mrs. Bermond for their efforts in aiding the Grand Jury.

Sheriff Ladner and his staff did an excellent job in notifying witnesses and arranging the necessary transportation for the Grand Jury. The Court House staff in general, and Mr. Rutherford and Mr. Heitzmann in particular were extremely cooperative and helpful in all ways.

District Attorney Albert Nacaise and his Assistant John Johnson deserve thanks for the hours of research and consultation given throughout the term of this Grand Jury.

We, the Grand Jury wish to thank Your Honor for the charge and instructions given to us when empaneled and for the additional consultation tendered at our request. We have enjoyed our tenure as members of the Grand Jury, and found the experience rewarding and enlightening.

And now, having completed our labors, we respectfully ask to stand finally discharged upon this date, the 24th day of July, A.D. 1974.

Respectfully submitted,

World in inflation's grip

The recent elections in Japan and Canada did little to disprove the argument in modern politics that the electorate is more tolerant of inflation than of the harsh measures necessary to bring it under control.

The global plague of spiraling prices, which makes the U.S. inflation rate of some 10 per cent appear puny, did create some understandable nervousness for Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Japan's Kakuei Tanaka, but both saw their parties survive stiff challenges.

The implication in Canada was that voters preferred the 11 per cent inflation rate to the price and income freeze advocated by Trudeau's opponent, Robert Stanfield, with its promise of more controls to come.

And in Japan, Tanaka earned little more than a mild rebuke for living costs that have soared by 24 per cent in the past year.

With inflation figures ranging from the relatively modest U.S. rate to Vietnam's 59 per cent, of course, there is an uncomfortable feeling that nobody knows how to deal with the problem.

Many countries have tinkered with wage and price controls, experimented with tax and monetary systems and allowed interest rates to soar. Nothing has worked in the face of a continuing public demand for more of the better things of life to which they have become accustomed in the recent history of world affluence.

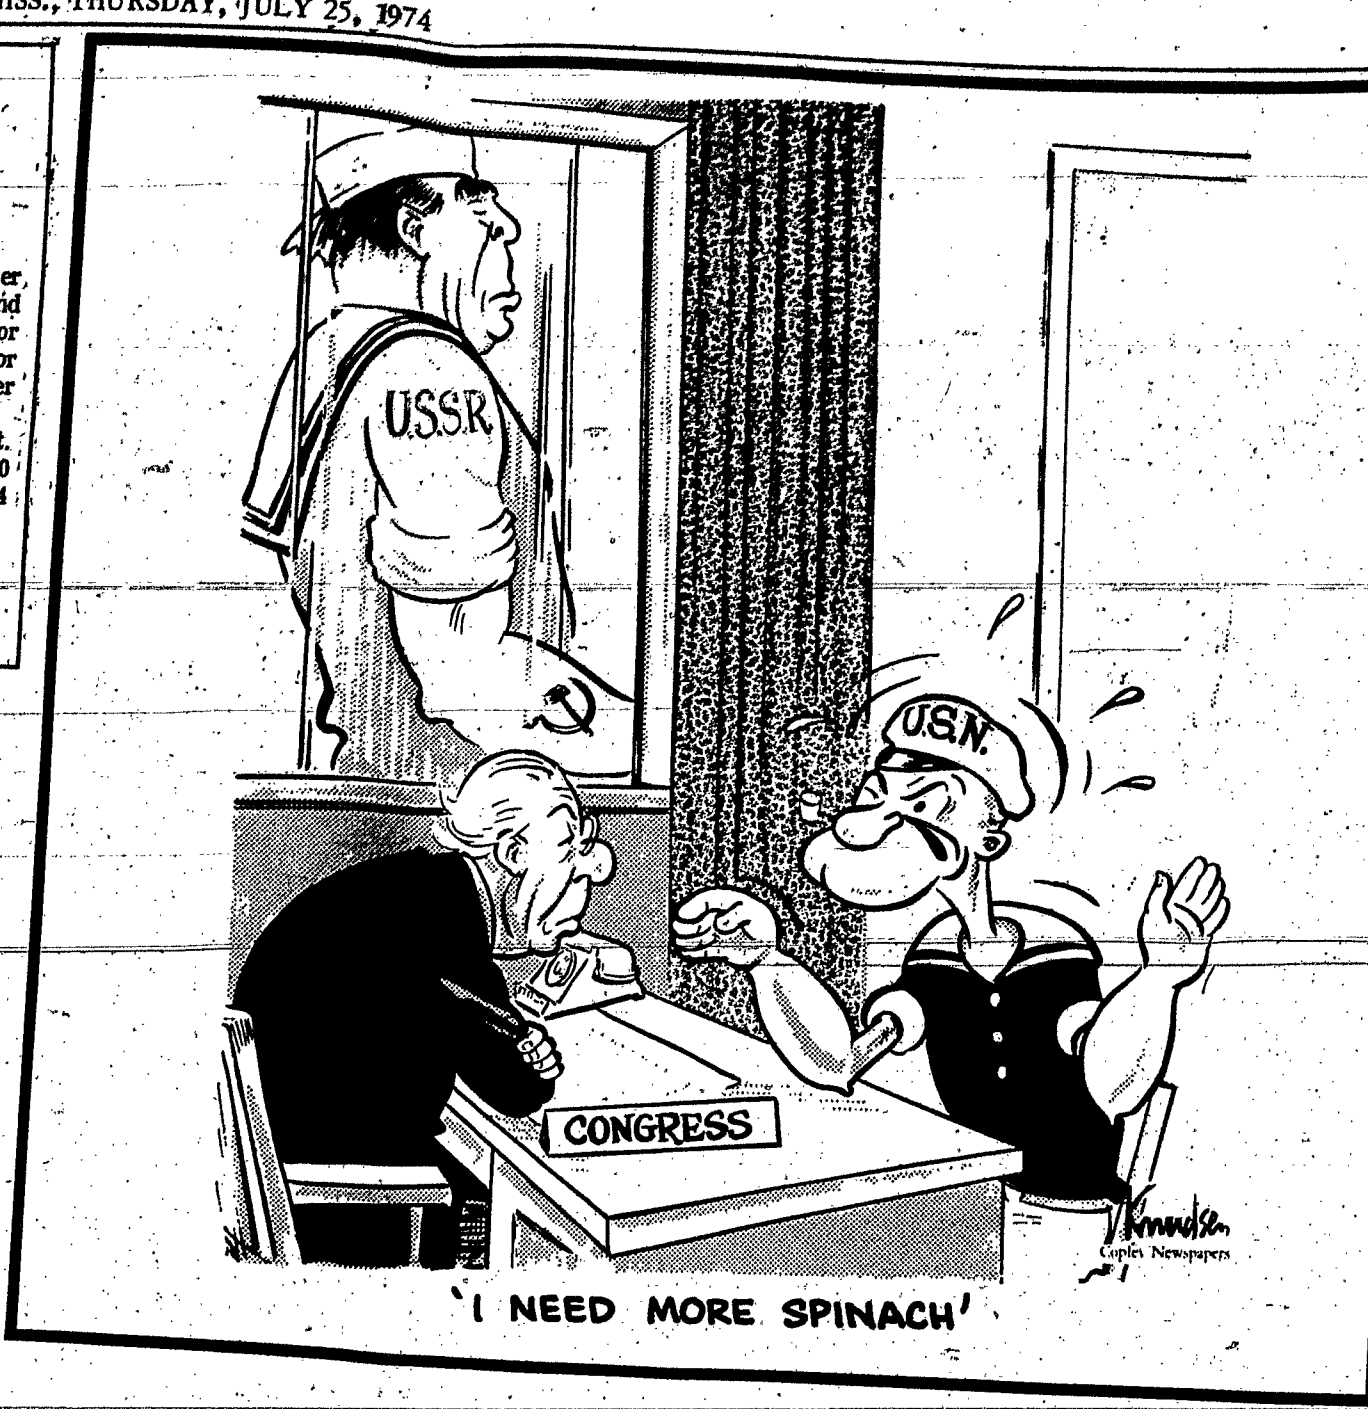

Some economists suggest that the best course is simply to accept inflation as a permanent fact of life and make adjustments to ease the pinch.

But the ultimate threat is that inflation will shake the foundations of the democratic governments and pave the way for anarchy and revolution.

Inflation is a world problem and calls for world action. Strangely enough, the world looks to the United States for leadership in responding to the dilemma.

There is little reason to believe the world will accept, however, the historic alternatives to inflation—unemployment and wage reductions.

Still, inflation is a matter of conditioning as well as government action or inaction and a government that puts its own spending habits in order will have taken an important step toward curbing the bad habits of its people.

A CHANGING WORLD

There is such a thing as too much Watergate

By John Pinterman
Editor,
Copley News Service

When the Gallup Poll revealed recently that 53 per cent of the American people think newspapers, television, radio and other segments of the news industry are using too much space and time on Water, President Nixon must have heaved a sigh of relief.

Right alongside the President, the Democrats heaved an even deeper sigh of relief. Just as they have denounced Mr. Nixon for his delaying tactics, they have hoped that those very same tactics might help them avoid embarrassment, or something worse, over a few skeletons in their own closet.

The President has put on a massive public relations and image restoration campaign to take the public's mind off the incredibly callous and dishonest misdeeds of Watergate and associated misdeeds. There was the trip to the Middle East, the trip to Moscow and other trips to come in a field where he excels — foreign relations.

These trips and accomplishments, if any, have not erased Watergate, but public exhaustion with the daily dose of headlines and "TV" "exposés" have accomplished the same result for the President.

Impeachment is less a sure thing. This is not because any great proof of White House innocence has emerged, but because the public is tired of the President fill out his term and then be gone. This public attitude, especially in an election year, must have a profound effect on House Judiciary Committee members, on the House itself and on the Senate where a trial would be held if so voted by the House.

Meanwhile, exposure of a few Democratic Party candidates' problems is having no impact of any consequence — again because the public is weary of "Watergate" political shenanigans and is now saying, in effect, "What else is new?"

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, for instance, is involved in a dispute over use of more than $100,000 in personal funds for his unsuccessful nomination. The Senate Watergate committee staff has questioned the legality of the personal donation, but no big thing is being made of it — not in the press, not in the committee and not even by Republicans who might be expected to say, "See, it's not only the Republicans who get in trouble."

There are questions also about Sen. George McGovern's use of funds presumably raised in support of his 1972 race for the presidency.

It appears that at the same time the McGovern campaign people were settling bills for less than 100 per cent payment on the plea that they were poor, they also were able to shift $340,416 raised for the presidential campaign to the senator's upcoming senatorial reelection effort in South Dakota.

Both Humphrey and McGovern denounced their critics as the fund manipulations became public, and they seem to have gotten away with it. No hue and cry has arisen for investigation and the whole thing likely will just fade away, a victim or a beneficiary (take your choice) of Watergate fatigue. Both Humphrey and McGovern, and probably more politicians, both Republicans and Democrats, thus gain from Mr. Nixon's skill in stretching out Watergate to the point where public indignation has been replaced by public apathy.

This disgust with too much Watergate in the newspapers is even expressed by Democrats.

In one year, Democrats believing there is too much concern with Watergate have increased from 31 to 43 per cent of those polled by Gallup. Republicans, understandably, think the same thing, to the tune of 75 per cent, up from 66 per cent a year ago.

The impeachment proceedings will drag on and run their course, as they should under a nation dedicated to the legal process. But the steam is gone — and this is good news to Mr. Nixon and to the Democrats alike.

Ethics issue cuts both ways

We are gratified that the staff of the Senate Watergate Committee took time from its investigation of the financing of President Nixon's 1972 campaign to delve into the books of other candidates. We would be equally gratified if the conscience of Democrats proves to be as sensitive to these findings as it has to the disclosures involving the Committee to Re-Elect the President.

Senate investigators have found that Sen. George McGovern is using $340,416 left over from his 1972 presidential campaign to help finance his current campaign for reelection in South Dakota. The ethical issue of using campaign money for a purpose other than that for which it was solicited is compounded by the fact that the McGovern presidential organization has pleaded poverty to duck payment of some of its 1972 campaign bills. In fact, the Watergate committee found that 37 corporations have settled such accounts for $35,322 less than the full amount — an arrangement open to interpretation as corporate contributions to McGovern's campaign, which would be illegal.

The committee also has discovered that Sen. Hubert Humphrey used a blind trust to conceal the fact he was funneling $112,000 of his own money into his 1972 presidential campaign, just before a new law took effect making such use of personal assets unlawful. Meanwhile the Justice Department has evidence that a dairy cooperative under fire for its support of the Nixon campaign also made illegal contributions to the presidential campaign of Rep. Wilbur Mills.

We doubt if the public will be satisfied if the Democrat-controlled Congress files these disclosures away just because the Watergate committee is now disbanded. They deserve the same thorough examination that Congress and the Justice Department have given to similar money-laundering and other irregularities in the financing of the Nixon campaign.

Campaign ethics have become a political issue in 1974, and a legitimate one. However, if the Democrats try to exploit the issue as a partisan one, we will have the spectacle this fall of a lot of pots calling the kettles black.

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

"The world is so full of a number of things,
I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings!"

Trouble is, there are so many things to be happy about that we get confused. And we forget that happiness is a three- or four way street, and what makes us very happy may not delight our neighbor at all, so things end up with dissatisfaction and sometimes anger and ill-will.

There is, for instance, the problem of the future of our country. Many learned men assert that the population of the world will double by the beginning of the new century. But if one man says: "Fine; God bless us every one", another asks how we are going to find room for everybody and how we are going to feed them. The pessimist points out that the combination of overcrowding and shortage of food invariably, through history, has resulted in war, famine and slaughter. Is this what we must look forward to?

But the optimist says "No!". He predicts that technology will provide the answer by doubling our food supplies, drastically reducing the birth rate, and by making armed conflict self-destructive. Time will tell — but we're glad we won't be around to see the outcome.

Now, going down the scale of values, we come to politicians. You can always tell one by his slightly greasy look and the cold flatness of his gaze. We don't believe a politician ever made anyone happy, except himself or the people he sold out to. But otherwise respectable people keep voting for him, so he is what you might call a long-distance pest who eventually ends up in sanctuary or on some intellectual Skid Row.

Next on our list are the Selfish Servers, different from the politicians because they work more under cover and more heartlessly. Their motto in every waking moment is "What's in it for me?". There's nothing in this crowd that would make anybody happy, except to see them exterminated before they can cause too much trouble and sorrow for their neighbors.

And do the "do-gooders", the evangelists, the "protectors of the poor", make you really happy? Could there be the slightest suspicion that they are more interested in lining their pockets than in benefiting mankind? Are they what the Bible calls "Whited sepulchers"? And we dare say that there are many other examples of "skim milk masquerading as cream".

Yes, we manage to stay happy in spite of manifold injustices. It is so nice to know that a hundred years from now they will be just as dead as we are!

Local VA News

BY
Chester L. Curvey

Many disabled veterans could receive increased pension benefits from the Veterans Administration if they could prove that they are housebound or in need of someone to care for them. This announcement was made today by Chester L. Curvey, Veterans service officer for Hancock County.

A veteran who is receiving non-service-connected disability pension from the Veterans Administration may be paid an additional $44 per month if his condition is such that he is confined to his home or the immediate premises. If the veteran is blind, confined to a wheelchair, or is shown to be bedfast, the VA may pay an additional $110 per month aid and attendance allowance.

When a veteran is determined to be eligible for either the housebound award of $44 per month, or the aid and attendance allowance of $110 per month, such amounts are paid in addition to the regular amount of pension to which he is entitled. The approval of either of these additional benefits also authorizes the Veterans Administration to pay for any outpatient treatment which the veteran may obtain from his private physician.

The VA may also furnish any drugs and medicines, prosthetic appliances, sick room supplies, or other items which are prescribed by the family physician. If a veteran is a patient in a nursing home, he is considered eligible for the aid and attendance allowance, as well as free drugs and medicines.

If a veteran is receiving VA pension, and feels he might be eligible for these increased benefits, he should furnish the VA with a report from his doctor, showing he is housebound or in need of someone to care for him.

The local Veterans service officer can assist him in prosecuting this type of claim with the Veterans Administration.

The Honorable John Longo
Mayor of Waveland
Waveland, Mississippi

Dear Mayor Longo:

An incident of this past week end has prompted us to sing the praises of your police department.

On Sunday morning (July 14th) around 10 A.M. we discovered that our skiff and 10 HP motor had been stolen. Some time later the skiff was found adrift but no motor.

Needless to say, we were quite outdone about this. With no hope of ever seeing our motor again, we decided about 11 A.M. to take a description of it to Chief of Police Fred Bourgeois.

About 6 P.M. we received word to come to the chief's house to offer some form of identification. Sure enough, Officers Bert Steffell and Gerald Price, Jr. had recovered our motor for us. Certainly, such fast and efficient work should not go unnoticed. Many thanks to Chief Bourgeois, Officers Steffell and Price, and all members of the department who are doing such a tremendous job. Waveland is safer because of such an alert, dedicated department.

Sincerely yours,
Wesley H. Bourgeois

Stolen goods check

Waveland Patrolman Bert Steifel, left, and Constable Sam Pernicaro check papers found in a stolen car at the Fairgrounds which the police department impounded July 14. An outboard motor, reported stolen earlier in the day was discovered in the trunk of the car.

Waveland police get kudos for quick action

Quick recovery of a stolen outboard motor by Waveland police July 14 led to a letter of commendation for the police department.

New Orleans residents Wesley Bourgeois and Arthur Renaudin, Jr., vacationing in Waveland, notified Waveland Marshal Fred Bourgeois of the theft of the motor.

The two men described the course of events in their letter, listed in Letters to the Editor in this issue. Waveland Patrolman Bert Steifel and Gerald Price, investigating an abandoned car report at the County Fairgrounds for the sheriff's department, discovered the car to be stolen and the missing boat motor in the trunk.

The case is still under investigation by the police department and the Highway Patrol special investigation department.

MDYS and Family Court sign $30,000 contract

by Bob Innes
Long Beach
Bureau Chief

Representatives from the Mississippi Department of Youth Services of Jackson were on the coast recently to sign a $30,000 contract for the Harrison County Family Court's Youth Achievement Home.

Family Court Judge

Lawrence Semski explained that the contract signing represents a new source of funding for the continued operation of the home. "Previous grants have come directly from the Law Enforcement Assistance Division, but now funding is channeled through the Department of Youth Services," he said.

Department included: Jimmy Russell, executive director; Morris Thigpen, director of community services; and David Robbins, group home supervisor.

The Harrison County grant is one of seven for group homes throughout the state being awarded by the Department.

Thigpen explained that MDYS can, under the new set-up, take on the personnel and staffing to permit statewide coordination and maintain guidelines on a state level for the various homes which was not possible under the previous operation.

"I must comment on the amount of local community support exhibited for the Harrison County project. It has been excellent, and is of utmost importance to the success of the youth achievement home operation," said Thigpen. Also present for the signing was Sandra Dugan, state supervisor for the youth service.

Drugs and your health

by John F. Russell, M.D.

Once again the rains have come, the cows have fertilized the pastures, and the mushrooms have sprouted on the cow pats.

So it is natural that questions are coming in about mushrooms. "Are they dangerous?" "What will they do to you?" "How can you tell which mushrooms are the good ones and which ones are poisonous?" "Can you trip on mushrooms?" And they don't mean trip over them.

I remember my grandmother going out in the woods and picking mushrooms to make mushroom soup. She seemed to know instinctively which were edible and which were poisonous. She, like so many Europeans, had been trained from childhood in which herbs were good for what ailment and which mushrooms were good for eating and which should be left untouched. In those days, families grew the foods that they would need, canned what could not be kept, and were self sufficient. They grew herbs for seasonings as well as for medications, and often they treated their own illnesses with these herbs.

This knowledge of the plant world was passed along through the generations.

Times have changed. Families no longer are self sufficient in the world which grows more complex every day. We are no longer trained to know which herb is good for what, and I'd venture to say that there aren't more than a handful of people in the whole state who are "expert" enough to pick out the Psilocybin mushroom from the multitudes of other varieties, many of which are extremely poisonous.

Last summer we had a rash of young people across the state admitted to hospitals for mushroom poisoning. These young people knew only that there were some mushrooms in Mississippi that were purported to be the "magic mushroom", the mushroom that, like LSD, would bring visions, hallucinations, and euphoria. They did not know that the deadly Amanita muscaria grew right along with the Psilocybin mushroom, and that it was very difficult to tell one mushroom from another.

They did not know about the pain, the cramping, the vomiting and other unpleasantness which accompany the ingestion of these mushrooms.

They did not know that even if they found the true hallucinogenic mushroom, "freak outs" and "bum trips" were common, far, far more so than with LSD.

And their friends did not tell them about the after-effects which include extreme depressions, lethargy, and loss of will to live which persist for several days after the "trip".

Any one really "in the know" in the drug scene avoids mushrooms as not worth the effort. We were really very fortunate in this state last year that there were not a greater number of deaths from mushroom poisoning.

Yet, every year with a new crop of mushrooms, there seem to be a new crop of experimenters who have heard of the "magic mushroom" and want to try it. It is important that they learn the facts about this fungus, the dangers inherent, and the unhappiness that can result from this pursuit of happiness. Let us buy our mushrooms in the grocery store and leave the picking to others who are far better trained than we.

Semski attends national conference

by Bob Innes
Long Beach
Bureau Chief

Judge Lawrence Semski represented the Harrison County Family Court at the recent 37th annual conference of National Council of Juvenile Court Judges in Reno, Nev.

At the Pioneer Theatre Auditorium, the conference featured seminars on subjects including standards in juvenile justice, juvenile status offenses in the juvenile court, recent appellate cases in juvenile justice and leadership role of the juvenile court judge.

Juvenile Court Judge Carl E. Guernsey of Jackson was elected treasurer of the NCJ.

In the business session resolutions adopted by the council included:

A model juvenile court statute calling for the cooperation of all persons and organizations such as the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, to establish a liaison with the NCJJC committee and state legislative bodies to determine whether proposed model statutes have been scrutinized and developed consistent with the review process recommended by the NCJJC committee.

One resolution concerned the waiver of juveniles to adult court. It was pointed out that some district attorneys are making this determination without a certification hearing and the committee resolved that no child should be tried as an adult criminal unless he has been transferred for prosecution as such by order of a judge of the Juvenile Court after being afforded a certification hearing and full due process protection.

Scout camps receive recognition

The New Orleans Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, camps at Slidell and in Mississippi, both received the "A" National Standard Rating on their recent inspections. Frank W. Middleton, Jr., a Baton Rouge attorney, and Richard F. Knight, a Bogalusa attorney, headed the official inspection party.

This objective review of the camps operation, facilities, equipment, staff and program qualified Camp Salmen (Slidell, La.) and the Salmen Scout Reservation (in Mississippi) for this National Award. Standards required include such items as tested drinking water, milk supply, refrigeration, physical exams, medical inspections, health log, latrines, waste disposal, state and local permits, licenses, precamp health, safety, and sanitation inspections.

Camp directors A.F. Fischer and Ted Speed and their staffs received special commendations. Both camps will be in operation for two additional weeks closing on August 3.

Miss. engineers to meet in New Orleans

The Mississippi Engineering Society has as the theme for its annual convention this year, "Engineers Question The Energy Crisis."

The agenda will consist of answers to this question — from spokesmen for government, the oil and coal industries, and from environmentalists.

The M.E.S. meets jointly with the Louisiana Engineering Society this year in New Orleans, and the dates are set for July 25-27 at the Royal Sonesta Hotel.

The theme of our meeting," says Jack Pepper, Jackson, M.E.S. president, "does not mean that we doubt that there is an energy crisis."

"What it does mean is that we want to know more about the causes of the crisis and why such a crisis came about and what we can do about it."

Expressing the government's viewpoint will be James R. Gill, Washington D. C., Associate Administrator of the Office of Oil and Gas, Federal Energy Office.

Before joining the government in 1973, Gill was president of an exploration and production company for 15 years. He has had wide experience in all phases of exploration, drilling, production and sales.

Ross Vincent, the president and co-founder of the Ecology Center of Louisiana, headquartered in New Orleans, will give the environmentalist's view of the current national energy shortage.

As a research chemical engineer for Freeport Sulphur Company, in the sixties, Vincent conducted research in the field of air-pollution control. He holds a patent on recovery of sulfur dioxide from power-plant stack gases.

The spokesman for the coal industry will be Cloyd D. McDowell, president, since 1958, of the Harlan County Coal Operators Association in Kentucky and current president of the National Independent Coal Operator's Association, with offices in Washington, D. C.

Semski attends national conference

by Bob Innes
Long Beach
Bureau Chief

Judge Lawrence Semski represented the Harrison County Family Court at the recent 37th annual conference of National Council of Juvenile Court Judges in Reno, Nev. At the Pioneer Theatre Auditorium, the conference featured seminars on subjects including standards in juvenile justice, juvenile status offenses in the juvenile court, recent appellate cases in juvenile justice and leadership role of the juvenile court judge.

Juvenile Court Judge Carl E. Guernsey of Jackson was elected treasurer of the NCJJC.

Scout camps receive recognition

The New Orleans Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, camps at Slidell and in Mississippi, both received the "A" National Standard Rating on their recent inspections. Frank W. Middleton, Jr., a Baton Rouge attorney, and Richard F. Knight, a Bogalusa attorney, headed the official inspection party.

This objective review of the camps operation, facilities, equipment, staff and program qualified Camp Salmien (Slidell, La.) and the Salmien Scout Reservation (in Mississippi) for this National Award. Standards required include such items as tested drinking water, milk supply, refrigeration, physical exams, medical inspections, health log, latrines, waste disposal, state and local permits, licenses, precamp health, safety, and sanitation inspections. Camp directors A.F. Fischer and Ted Speed and their staffs received special commendations. Both camps will be in operation for two additional weeks closing on August 3.

J.C.J. In the business session resolutions adopted by the council included:

A model juvenile court statute calling for the cooperation of all persons and organizations such as the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, to establish a liaison with the NCJJC committee and state legislative bodies to determine whether proposed model statutes have been scrutinized and developed consistent with the review process recommended by the NCJJC committee;

One resolution concerned the waiver of juveniles to adult court. It was pointed out that some district attorneys are making this determination without a certification hearing and the committee resolved that no child should be tried as an adult criminal unless he has been transferred for prosecution as such by order of a judge of the Juvenile Court after being afforded a certification hearing and full due process protection;

A resolution concerning vocational school opportunities for juveniles. In many states, vocational technical institutions have refused to accept students under the age of 18 unless they have a high school diploma. The resolution points out the need for alternative courses in high school as well as for available facilities and programs of technical vocational institutions which would assist the high school dropout.

The council resolved to request the federal government to require all grants presently being made or those to be made to technical and vocational institutions be subject to the opening of their doors for children with or without a high school diploma and in need of and capable benefit from such a curriculum.

U.S. District Judge Don J. Young of Toledo, Ohio who conducted the seminar on recent appellate cases has authored a handbook on recent pertinent appellate cases which is scheduled for distribution by the end of the month. Semski said, "the handbook will be most helpful to any of us in the field."

Probation and after care personnel and others in the field of juvenile corrections also attended the week-long conference.

Miss. engineers to meet in New Orleans

The Mississippi Engineering Society has as the theme for its annual convention this year, "Engineers Question The Energy Crisis."

The agenda will consist of answers to this question — from spokesmen for government, the oil and coal industries, and from environmentalists.

The M.E.S. meets jointly with the Louisiana Engineering Society this year in New Orleans, and the dates are set for July 25-27 at the Royal Sonesta Hotel.

"The theme of our meeting," says Jack Pepper, Jackson, M.E.S. president, "does not mean that we doubt that there is an energy crisis."

"What it does mean is that we want to know more about the causes of the crisis and why such a crisis came about and what we can do about it."

Expressing the government's viewpoint will be James R. Gill, Washington D. C., Associate Administrator of the Office of Oil and Gas, Federal Energy Office.

Before joining the government in 1973, Gill was president of an exploration and production company for 15 years. He has had wide experience in all phases of exploration, drilling, production and sales.

Ross Vincent, the president and co-founder of the Ecology Center of Louisiana, headquartered in New Orleans, will give the environmentalist's view of the current national energy shortage.

As a research chemical engineer for Freeport Sulphur Company in the sixties, Vincent conducted research in the field of air-pollution control. He holds a patent on recovery of sulfur dioxide from power-plant stack gases. The spokesman for the coal industry will be Cloyd D. McDowell, president, since 1958, of the Harlan County Coal Operators Association in Kentucky and current president of the National Independent Coal Operator's Association, with offices in Washington, D. C.

Former national president is Jr. Auxiliary workshop speaker

A special workshop for provisional members of the Bay-Waveland Junior Auxiliary was held July 17.

CAROL MEADOWS

This workshop, attended by active members as well as provisionals, had as special guest speaker Mrs. Carol Lynn Meadows of Gulfport. The knowledgeable Mrs. Meadows was the natural choice for this special session dealing with the national association as she served as national president of Junior Auxiliaries for 1973-74. Prior to serving in this position, Carol Lynn held the offices of second vice president and president of the Gulfport Junior Auxiliary. In addition to her responsibilities as a mother and wife of a prominent attorney she serves as hospitably chairman of the Gulf Coast Symphony Guild and is a chairman and patron of the Gulfport Little Theatre. It is no surprise when one learns that the active Mrs. Meadows was selected as one of ten "Beautiful Activists" for the state of Mississippi in 1974 or that she is listed in the 1970 edition of Outstanding Young Women of America. One wonders how this busy lady finds time to teach Sunday School at the First Baptist Church of Gulfport. She lists her priorities as "family first, faith second, and Junior Auxiliary third." Following the workshop, held at the Webb Community Center, a luncheon at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club was enjoyed by those attending.

Picayune Flea Market set for Aug. 3-4

With a 20 percent increase in vendors the Picayune August Flea Market promises to be the biggest yet. The monthly market will be held the first weekend, August 3-4, at the Gulf South Fairgrounds on Highway 11 South.

The market is a monthly promotion of the Picayune Chamber of Commerce. Vendors and dealers from a three-state area have been participating in the event since it was begun in May of this year.

Chairman Tom Tozzi said response each month has continued to grow and despite a hot, weather-wise July market, the overall event showed a healthy increase.

"We expect more dealers to turn to the outside booths for the August market," he said, "but we have a number of advance registrations for both inside and outside spaces."

Booth spaces are $5 per day or $8 for both days and may be made by contacting the chamber. Just about anything and everything has been offered up for grabs by vendors in previous markets which have attracted some 4,000 shoppers each month.

Door prizes will also be given away during the August market and there is no admission charge.

Vows solemnized

Miss Pamela Ann Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Allen Sr. of Gulfport, Miss., and James Barry Mauffray, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Mauffray, Kila, Miss., were married June 2 officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Michel had as Sunday guests her brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Delmas Ladner of Hattiesburg and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cardana and daughter of Chalmette, La. Also spending last week with Mr. and Mrs. Michel was his sister Mrs. Genevieve Maxon of New Orleans.

Scianna in Washington for Boys Nation program

Paul D. Scianna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Scianna, Sr. of Bay St. Louis, has joined a group of 100 of the nation's top youths in Washington, D. C. for a series of activities in connection with the 20th annual Boys Nation program of The American Legion.

A senior at Bay Senior High School, Paul earned his trip to Washington as an outstanding graduate of the 1974 Boys State program of The American Legion Department of Mississippi. He was one of two boys to be selected for the coveted title of "junior Senator" from the state competition.

The young men have undertaken a week-long exercise in high level government operations designed to provide an insight into the workings of the branches of the Federal Government. Through the process of "Federalist" and "Nationalist" party mock conventions he will participate in the nomination of candidates and the ultimate election of a 1974 Boys Nation "President" and "Vice President."

Highlights of the 1974 Boys Nation program will include a visit to the White House where, hopefully, the boys will meet President Nixon; the Congress in session and lunch or a meeting with individual Congressmen; the Defense Department; the Civil Service Commission; and the Naval Academy at nearby Annapolis. They will also pay tribute to the dead of all wars by laying a wreath at the Tomb of the unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery.

For the most part, however, the boys will be occupied with the serious study of the intricacies of government. Their instructors will be a staff of dedicated American Legionnaires who are experts in legislative matters, and who have had many years of experience in youth work.

Sponsored by The American Legion's National Americanism Commission, the Boys Nation program started in 1946. The program has as its aim, the fostering of a better appreciation and understanding of the American democratic process.

Senior Citizens Happenings

The participants and staff members of the Senior Citizens Spend-the-Day Center in Hancock County entertained at an outdoor picnic recently. The area chosen was Harbor Park in Pass Christian. A beautiful sunny day and a very shady picnic area made the outing perfect.

Transportation for the picnic was provided by the staff. Contributing to the picnic were four staff members, three volunteers, 15 participants, and one worker for the Areawide Model Project, with ages ranging from 17 to 86.

Lunches were provided by the participants and the staff members. The menu included fried chicken, potato salad, deviled eggs, ham, tuna salad, stuffed celery, baked beans, salami and watermelon.

Activities and games along with music and dancing were enjoyed. Prizes for the winners of the games were donated by the staff members and the Bay St. Louis Fire Department. Special thanks go to Mrs. Wilma Miller for helping to make the picnic the success that it was. The staff members, as well as the participants, enjoyed themselves fully.

STRETCH YOUR PASTURES

Get all the grazing possible from each acre. With the high cost of pastures and the low selling price for livestock, you need to get all the forage possible. Here are some suggestions:

Manage the grazing. Do this by concentrating three to five cows per acre. Then rotate to another pasture when the forage is grazed down. Rotational grazing controls quality by making animals graze uniformly, eliminating spot grazing.

For best hay, cut before the grass heads. Grass hay is more nutritious when harvested before the seedhead forms. Bermuda and bahia, should be cut every four to six weeks, depending upon moisture and fertilization.

Soil test for lime needs. The main reason for liming grass pastures is to release nutrients already in the soil. Some nutrients may be adequate if the land is limed. Liming may be the best investment on pastures this year.

Control weeds by using 2, 4-D or Banvel D or combinations of these for broadleaf weeds. Weeds take moisture, nutrients and space the grasses need. Good weed control can result in a 25 per cent increase in the amount of grazing you get.

Plan now to seed a legume in your pastures this fall. Seed supplies may be short so it is a good idea to order your legume seed and specific inoculant now. Remember, some legumes can supply up to 200 pounds of nitrogen per acre each year.

SILAGE HARVESTING
For real high quality feed, silage must be harvested at the right stage of maturity. For corn this is when the grain is in the dent stage. The plant will likely have some browning leaves at the bottom of the stalk and the shuck will be beginning to turn brown.

Sorghum should be cut in the late dough stage, as the grain changes color. Harvesting too early will result in excessive losses and low quality feed. Harvesting late after the plants are dry will prevent proper packing and the silage will not ferment. If silage is too dry to pack properly, water can be added.

Good cutting is essential to packing. Harvesting equipment should be set so that the length of the cut is around one-half inch.

DAIRY NOTES
It will pay you to step-up milk production. Even adding just one pound of milk per day to the cows' production for a 305-day lactation period would increase the income per cow by $28.

Do this by good management. This means feeding the cows properly, improving your milking habits, controlling flies, keeping the cows comfortable, using the best bulls available to get higher producing replacement heifers and strict attention to the cows health.

FALLOW LAND
Land that is to be planted to fall pastures should be fallowed from now until planting time. If the soil is compacted, deep plow or chisel the first trip over the field. Then it should be disked every two to three weeks until planting time.

If lime is needed, apply it either before first breaking or between diskings. The crop should be seeded in a moist, firm seedbed.

area. Spray for insects using malathion or methoxychlor. Check aeration equipment to be sure it is working properly before seed are put in bins or storage house.

If your seed storage areas are not equipped with aeration systems, plan to install one as it is virtually impossible to maintain weed quality without aeration.

There may be some cottonseed and soybean seed that did not get planted this year that farmers or seedsmen wish to keep for next year's planting.

These seed should be tested as soon as possible to determine if the quality is good enough for them to be carried over. Soybean seed will generally not carryover, but many cottonseed can be carried over if the quality is good.

THE SEA COAST ECHO, BAY ST. LOUIS, MISS., THURSDAY, JULY 25, 1974 SECTION B PAGE 5

FARM SAFETY WEEK

Work on a farm can be dangerous and unhealthy. Only four percent of our population is composed of farm workers, but they suffer eight percent of the on-the-job injuries.

Farm workers are killed at three and a half times the national rate. This toll can be reduced. It is up to you to make your farm a truly safe and healthy place to work.

National Farm Safety Week, July 25-31, is a good time to get started on doing just that.

LEGUMES IN PASTURES

Some legumes can supply up to 200 pounds of nitrogen per acre a year in your pastures. This could help beat the fertilizer shortage and at the same time upgrade the quality of your pastures.

the-hour for Superior collecting a two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth inning to force Crosby out of the lead.

Donald Strong was the winning pitcher and Walter Gagnon was charged with the loss.

The Krack Bullets won the second game of the night by forfeit over Pest Control who was unable to field a team.
